CATALOG REQUEST

A Word From The President

Well here it is, catalog #3 (sorry it took so long). You'll find all the games listed within, old, new and coming soon, along with a rating and a price. We hope this helps you in your gaming decisions. If you have any questions regarding specific game info, call the info line. We'll always give you an honest review. Andrew and I play games 10-14 hours a day to make sure you don't get stuck with a dud. We can save you big bucks right there! So why call the discount boneheads? If a game is bad I probably didn't order any anyway so there's no hard sell. That's just one of the ways we're doing it better. Another way is our new RPG game network. Not only do we translate the instructions but we also supply step by step hint books and if you get stuck, we'll hook you up with another game player who past that point, or you can call Mas and talk to him. Import RPG's are some of the finest games in the world and now DIE HARD brings 'em home!

As you already know (but I'll remind you), we get limited supplies of import games before Japan, and American games right on the street date! You never have to wait! We do all this and more because we'd expect the same.. Buying a game should be a fun and easy experience where you should always be satisfied. A lot of other stores have to "match price" to get your business because they lack knowledge and service, and you roll the dice every time you call. Games today (especially good ones) are expensive to develop and the price is usually fair.

We'll make sure to steer you to the good ones so you'll always get your money's worth. That's the DIE HARD difference! So stick with us, you can look forward to our magazine and then a game developed by you know who! Have a great year, and thank you for your business.

Sincerely,

Meet the Staff of DIE HARD

How'd They Do That?

Street Fighter 2 is a great example of what programmers can do if they: 1) Have the knowledge, 2) Take their time, and 3) Have more in mind than just profits! Capcom is giving you a 100% exact version of Street Fighter 2! Knowing if it was let's say 80% exact, you would buy it anyway.

By correctly utilizing the supporting hardware in the Super NES, Capcom has been able to bring the arcade Street Fighter 2 into homes everywhere! Think of all the quarters you'll save!

So now knowing what we can have, what's the deal on all the games that fall way short with flickering, slowness, bad control, etc? (Have you played Pit Fighter? . . . Yuck!) I think the problem here is that a lot of companies develop games with profit in mind, rushing them out, hoping the name will sell them before the reviews come out. Luckily, there are companies out there who realize that if you make a good game you won't have to worry about profits. Not only will we buy them, but we'll pay more for the best quality, thus preserving our valued industry of video gaming in the years to come. Way to go Capcom!

How'd They Do That?

The new Wonder Mega from Victor is the top of the line in home CD units. This new CD, compatible with Sega's Mega CD, has a new Karaoke feature, a motorized hatch, and all new input/output jacks.

The Karaoke feature lets you listen to any CD without the words! Plug in a microphone and you're the Lead Singer! (Watch out Adele.)

The MIDI (Musical Instrument Digital Interface) allows you to hook up musical instruments and special MIDI CDs. Other new sound enhancements include digital echo, pitch control, voice cancel and voice changer.

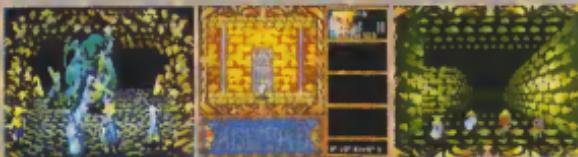

This new CD also has an RF to AV out (for TVs without AV jacks), and super VHS. However, the best news is the announcement of Victor/Conc's Wonderdog. A Sonic style action game made especially for CDs with over 400 enemy characters, stunning graphics and animated intermissions. Look for Wonderdog this June and the Victor CD (includes a four in one CD game) April 1st for about $700. For additional info or to pre-book, call the info line.

Super NES CD Talk

By now I'm sure you've heard about the incredible hardware specs of the new Nintendo CD Rom (available '93).

You probably said whoah! But then you thought ... this baby will probably cost a fortune..... Then you saw the price ($199.99) and went WHOAH! and then fell out of your chair (imagine what Sega did, there were toilets flushing that day I can tell you).

Sources inside Japan informed us this new CD will employ dual processing right out of the gate (Nintendo works closely with these developers). That means 32 bit to me and you! Other features include a new custom 16 bit chip which enables all things to go at 21 mhz! A biaxial scaling and rotation chip, a polygon chip and a special full motion video chip. So what can it do?

How about unlimited sprites (size and on screen), scaling and rotating all at different intervals, all different colors, with no slow or flick! How about 20 minutes of uninterrupted full screen full motion video. And polygon games (such as Steel Talons) done to perfection.

Of course games like this would be megabucks to developers, so expect to pay the price and don't moan about it. Ten or fifteen dollars is the difference between a piece of doo-doo and a masterpiece. If you want $40 games, stick with your 8 bit. I hear so many people complaining about game length and short endings and colors etc. . . well now you can have it! But it all costs money (this is the programmer talking) confuzzled say: If customer want $40 dollar game he get short okey-doky cartridge, if customer pay a few buck more he get more animation, scaling and a one long ending! O.K. back to the CD ... sound! It's programmable which means the sky's the limit!

So there it is, CD ROM #3, we've got the Duo, the Mega and the NES! '93 is going to be very interesting.

As far as games go here's what we know for sure - two of the first games will be the new Mario and Zelda adventures! Along with a 3-D driving game (I wonder what that could be), and of course look for Castlevania V and Xexus by Konami, a new Ghouls & Ghosts, and maybe SF II Championship edition from Capcom, Final Fantasy V from Square, Dragon Warrior 6 from Enix, total carnage from Acclaim, a bunch of movie titles, plus all of your other Nintendo favorites. The good news to all gamers is that the two CDs are totally compatible, way to go Nintendo! Now it's in the programmers hands ... we're waiting...
